“ My condolences to Stacey's family. Stacey and I never met in real life. We were merely Facebook friends having met through a Multiple Myeloma group page and became friendly as we both lived close by one another in South Florida. We exchanged friendly messages about how we were treating our disease. As I recall the last time we were in touch Stacey was doing well so just hearing yesterday about her passing took me by surprise. Again, my condolences. I know how hard this must be on you. May her memory be a blessing.

“ Hello:

I just found out about Stacey's passing and wanted to share some memories.

My firm and I worked with Stacey for many years in connection with our immigration advertising needs. Over that time, I came to know her a bit on a personal level as well.

Most recently, we discussed her unbridled excitement over the upcoming birth of her grandson (and her Uber Eats orders during the pandemic). It sounds like maybe she got to meet her grandson before she passed, and I bet that made her overjoyed.

I know how courageously Stacey battled cancer (and hurricanes and other acts of G-d!). I will miss her lightning-fast responses to emails and mile-a-minute vocal cadence.

Rest in peace, Stacey.

Sincerely,

*Sam Radin

“ I posted this just after Stacey passed on Facebook...
It is with deep sadness to say that my very close friend, like a sister, of 51 years Stacey Spivack has passed. Her intelligence, kindness, generosity, beauty, sarcasm, quick wit, class, sense of style, confidence and sense of humor made her a one of a kind and a phenomenal friend. Our memories and private jokes will live through me now and so will the tremendous impact she made on my life and my family. She fought the good fight, for five years, like the Warrior Princess she is and always will be. ❤️. I'm glad that you are at peace now, with God and with your brother Michael. Her parents and son Brandon, the rest of her family and close friends are devastated. She raised the most amazing son, really. The way she fought so hard to meet her grandbaby boy, Noah Blake was beyond beautiful. You did it Stace! My heart is so broken, Sistah 💔 Until we meet again. Save me a seat. I love you my girl, no more stress, no more pain. Thank you for so many laughs and good times...even during the bad times we laughed! I miss you so much already. 💔💔💔
💔 Forever in my heart ❤️

“ We texted, FaceTimed and/ or talked daily but the last time I saw you in person was 2/20 (this pic is from then) just before the pandemic hit. We had an amazing time as we always did sharing so many laughs the whole time. Our 45+ years of friendship was extra special and way too many memories to share here. You were a fighter until the end and you never gave up on trying to beat this terrible illness anyway you could. You loved and adored welcoming Noah and holding him and I’m so glad you were able to do that. You will live on forever through him & Brandon and know that your family & friends will never forget you, ever. You were one of a kind and I miss talking to you already. Your sense of humor, our many inside jokes and the excitement every time we got together even after you moved to Florida was always there. I cherish the times we spent together especially over the last few years between your chemo treatments when we would lounge, eat, laugh & talk.. I will never forget those times and treasure the special friendship and “sisterhood” we shared. My Spacey, I will miss you forever, but I’ll look for signs that I know you will send me along the way. I love you so much; more than you will ever know. You will continue to live on in all the memories we made together. “When someone you love becomes a memory... that memory becomes a treasure.”
I love you forever and then some.
